Early Recollections of Alfred Kutch.

By request, I will give some of my recollections of my early days, and, in order to do so, I shall speak of my father. He was from the State of Maryland to North Carolina; thence to Kentucky; thence to Washington County, Indiana, near Salem; thence to Brownsburg, Jackson County. I was born near Salem, in the year 1814, December 2.

(His father was John C. Kutch (11/3/1786-12/8/1869) m. 1804 Elizabeth Cane (2/12/1787-10/15/1847).

Now it is but justice to the reader of this to note that the State of Indiana was only a territory at that time. After staying in Jackson County, Indiana, two years, father removed to Monroe County, Indiana; and as there was no road from Brownstown to Bloomington, only what was known as Bigger's trace, he took his family on horse back to the place he settled on, one mile and a half south of John Ketcham's water-mill, and eight miles south of Bloomington, on Clear Creek. He then went back to Jackson County and dug himself a large water craft, and landed it in the Muscatatak river, and made his way down stream, to where it empties into the east fork of White River; thence down White River to the mouth of Salt Creek; thence up Salt Creek to the mouth of Clear Creek; thence up Clear Creek within three-quarters of a mile of Harrodsburg. As that was as far as he could get, for fallen timber in the creek, which had been fell by William Chambers, who had settled there one year before, he landed within four miles of where he settled. This was about the 17th day of April 1817. He built a small round-log house, cleared and fenced the land, and raised a crop of corn that year. When he got out of bread stuff, he went to Shakertown, on Shaker prairie, and carried his meal on horseback. There were no mills there at that time, and but few settlers, and not much else except a howling wilderness. The most frequent salutation was a howl of the wolf, or the yell of the Indian. The early settlers were William, David, John and Anthony Chambers, Jacob, John and David Sayers.

John Ketcham built the first water mill in the county, he also built the court house in Bloomington.

The early settlers had a very hard time getting bread stuff, having to beat their corn in a mortar, a hole burnt in the end of a log of wood, such as beech or white oak; and the most of the time the corn was frostbitten which made poor bread. After the second and third years they managed to have biscuits on Sunday mornings. Clothing also was very hard to get. They raised flax and hemp for shirting and overalls for spring and summer wear, and buckskin for winter.

When the settlement became thick enough settled, they built round-log school houses, cut out about seven feet of one end for a fireplace, and the scholars had the wood to get the most of the time. There was one log taken from the side of the house, and paper pasted in to give light. The scholars had to go from one to three miles to school. The early settlers had a nice time killing deer, bears and turkeys. The range for stock was good.

When the writer of this was in his fourteenth year, his mother sent him to his aunt's on an errand; and it was in the winter season. I had to cross Clear Creek and mill pond. When I got to the pond there was a girl and a boy there with a large dog, playing on the ice, and I thought I would spend a short time with them. When I was very near the middle of the pond. The dog came at me as vicious as he could, and sprang upon me and aimed to catch me by the throat, but missed his aim, and caught my hat by the brim, jerking me down on the ice. Being a very large dog, he kept me down and bit several large holes in my legs, besides several wounds on my shoulder. I could have run my thumb in them. Finally I raised with him, and we had quite a combat for awhile. There was a lady heard the noise the boy and girl made, and she came to my relief. She was something over a quarter of a mile distant from where the dog and I were, and the fight was continued until a very short time before she got there. Some of the time he had me down. At last I caught him around the neck with his head under my breast and held him down as long as I had strength; but being bitten and mangled so badly my strength failed me so much that I was obliged to let him go. But before I let him loose, I thought he would be sure to kill me, because I could do nothing more. If I had been in possession of a knife, I might have used it to good advantage, but I had nothing at all with which to defend myself. I let him loose, however, and he arose to his feet as I did. He growled, showed his teeth, and then left me. I had nearly a mile to travel before reaching home, and when I arrived there I was not able to stand alone. These are recollections I will never forget.

My father was a farmer and had eleven children-seven boys and four girls-all except three lived to be married. The oldest girl was scalded to death by falling into a tub of hot water when she was two years old. One of the boys died from the effect of rheumatism, the youngest boy was a cripple from birth, and died at about the age of thirty years. Father and mother belonged to the Christian church, in which they lived until their death. Mother died at the age of sixty-one, on the farm where she and father settled in Monroe County. Father died Dec. 11, 1869, in his eighty-third year, at Harrodsburgh, within three quarters of a mile where he landed his water craft, in getting to his place of destination..

RE: JOHN CHAMBERS WHO MARRIED NANCY ROSEBERRY

This is to certify that:

I was born, 1876, to Richard Perry and Eliza Berthena (Woodward) Chambers.

My grandfather Thomas Chambers was the son of John and Nancy (Roseberry) Chambers who are both buried in the very north-west corner of the Deckard Cemetery, Sullivan County, Indiana.

My father and other relatives have told me that some of the Chambers family emigrated from Monroe County, Indiana to Sullivan County, Indiana, in the 1850's. Among them were the families of my grandparents, Thomas and Charlotte (Butcher) Chambers; my great-grandparents, John and Nancy (Roseberry) Chambers; Hezekiah and Elizabeth (Deckard) Chambers; Noah and Mary (Simmons) Chambers.

My father often spoke of "Ky" (Hezekiah) and "Nobe" (Noah) Chambers as his cousins - - not first cousins - - i.e., the brothers, Hezekiah and Noah Chambers, were sons of a brother to my great-grandfather, John Chambers who married Nancy Roseberry.

Signed: Stanford Chambers
